Introduction

Only AIBA certified R&Js are allowed to officiate in AIBA competition, and must be registered in the AIBA database. All R&Js at any Star level must be trained and officiate competitions only by following the AIBA Technical rules, and Competition rules respective to the different programs (AOB, APB, WSB). The R&J manual should also be used as a guide.

The objective of AIBA’s R&J management system is to increase the number of R&Js at different levels of the sport. Also, to create a fair and transparent pathway for the development of R&Js.

The system is managed by AIBA and the AIBA R&J Commission (hereinafter referred to as AIBA). All questions and comments can be forwarded to education@aiba.org.

The following guidelines outline:

✔ A clear pathway and course structure to help aspiring and current AIBA Referees and Judges to understand the full requirements needed to obtain different levels of officiating.

✔ The process of maintaining certifications and other possible career paths.

AIBA reserves the right to change the rules and conditions stipulated in these Guidelines at any time without prior notice. In the event that any changes are made, the revised Guidelines shall be communicated via AIBA website.

Life after Refereeing and Judging

AIBA offers several opportunities for AIBA certified R&Js after retiring from their Refereeing and Judging duties, to continue their path within the AIBA family and use their experience to help evolve the sport of boxing. The following are pathways offered to former AIBA R&Js.

ITO – For those that miss being involved in competition events, being a former R&J is an advantage to becoming an ITO. All it takes is meeting the current eligibility requirements, attending a workshop and passing a practical, oral and written exam.

Supervisor – Successful work and proven leadership as an ITO is a step in the right direction towards becoming a Supervisor. For more detailed information on becoming an ITO or Supervisor, please review the ITO/Supervisor Guidelines.

R&J Instructor – Every 2 years AIBA organizes an R&J Instructor workshop to create a large group of competent Instructors. This elite group plays a key role in educating future generations and is considered a very important element within AIBA.

R&J Commission – Be a part of paving the future for R&Js. Express your interest to your National Federation on becoming a member of your National R&J Commission. This path can lead to a Confederation position, which can lead to a position within an AIBA Commission.

These are possibilities to consider during and after your Referee/Judge career within AIBA. Having a goal and future plans to better yourself helps improve AIBA as whole and will always be encouraged.
